Helping Global Corporations Manage Risk and Security

With corporate offices operating out of the key financial centres – Toronto and New York, BPS is on the cutting edge of helping organizations throughout the world address the changes in the multi-million dollar compliance industry.

BPS – Making It All Work Together

In an age where information flows more freely than ever before, the importance of security, compliance, and risk management has never been greater. As a result, a number of global organizations looking for ways to balance costs and efficiencies with controls and security, have turned to BPS. The Company's suite of product offerings have allowed organizations with long established corporate practices and infrastructure to integrate compliance and risk management operations into their organizations without costly changes to their existing systems or business practices.

Building A Foundation For Long Term Success

What has made BPS successful is not only their solid platform of corporate solutions, but the fact that they operate in an industry that is constantly renewing itself. As policies and procedures evolve, new corporate practices must be implemented to reflect these changes. As such, the need to have a system that is able to continually address these changes and ensure they are carried out throughout an entire organization (both at a national and international level), is paramount. BPS' software does just that, and more, making them one of the most respected and requested providers by leading corporations throughout the world.

Mark Opausky, President and CEO

“ Ensuring your investment partner has the knowledge and the financial resources to support the growth of the Company, is key to the success of any enterprise. However, making certain that your investment partner also shares your drive and determination to succeed, regardless of the obstacles encountered along the way, is equally crucial. It became clear after meeting with Scott Clark and the team at Covington, that they were a partner truly driven to succeed. As the Company continues to grow, we look forward to surpassing new milestones with the help of Covington and the rest of the BPS team. ”
